Demongate High Errata

As we develop our games, we try our best to ensure quality, but inevitably things slip through the cracks. This errata will be updated, as necessary, as any tweaks or changes are found. Simple typographical or layout issues are not indicated here, but any rules changes or clarifications are. All PDF versions of our books will contain all the latest errata, as given in each revision listed below. On-demand print books will also be updated with the latest errata.

You can locate your revision number on page 2 of your book (on the back side of the title page), just below the copyright notice.

Revision: 2.0.1, 3/24/14

The following Demonic Archdukes have been added, to flesh out this section, starting on page 333:

Bael

Bael, or Baal, rules a region in the far eastern reaches of the Demon World, where he is served by 70 legions of devils. He has the appearance of a vaguely humanoid, winged creature with the heads of a man, cat and toad.

Focalor

Formerly a mighty Throne, Focalor now rules 30 legions of soldiers near the fiery regions of Tartarus. He takes great pleasure in seeing or inciting deaths at sea. He appears as a human male of monstrous proportions, with the golden wings of a griffin.

Forfax

Forfax was at one time a Dominion, and now oversees the libraries and “schools” of the Demon World. He appears as a large cow, but is quite intelligent, with great knowledge of astronomy and research. He commands 36 legions of researchers and guards in his post in Pandæmonium, who serve him in his scholarly duties.

p. 126: Knockback Strike: The DIF of affecting an object is based on its mass, as per the rules for Telekinesis on p. 159 of the Paragon rules.

p. 380: Fenrir

Fenrir's Spend is 13. His Jumping skill is 8d8+10. Add Spirit Sense (SPI), 1d8+10. His Unarmed roll is 2d10+10 (-6 bound). 1d8+10. His Wrestling skill is 8d8+14.

p. 408: Jiangshi:

If the jiangshi succeeds, it drains 17 Energy from the victim.
